ABOUT THE BENEFIT CONCERT PERFORMERS

Natalie Wouldn't – headliners

Formed by members of Moon Ska Records recording artists Easy Big Fella, Natalie Wouldn't entered the Seattle music scene in 2000. The original trio of singer-songwriters expanded on the initial model and evolved into a tasty eight-piece powerhouse creating and performing an original blend of ska, soul, and rock & roll with a traditional rock steady finish. Natalie Wouldn't also draws influence from reggae, r&b, and the sounds of New Orleans brass bands. Natalie Wouldn't are a skillful and talented group of performers dedicated to writing and playing upbeat, high quality, danceable music. They have headlined shows for well-known international bands such as The English Beat, The Toasters, Bad Manners, The Slackers, Deals Gone Bad, Satori, and The Phenomenauts. Natalie Wouldn't has performed at music festivals including the Seattle Folklife Festival, Seattle Ska Fest, the Victoria Ska Festival, and have toured throughout the United Kingdom multiple times. They joined forces with Northwest Equine Stewardship Center to support the organization's mission at the NWESC Annual Summer Solstice Music Fest in 2016, and are looking forward to supporting NWESC, again, at the 2017 event on June 24th, 2017.

Seattle School Of Rock House Band

The Seattle School of Rock House Band is comprised of students who have auditioned for their positions as the best musicians within the school and are considered the stewards and mentors of it. As representatives of the school they play many events, festivals and concerts throughout the Greater Seattle area and have performed at Milwaukee's Summerfest over the last few years, gaining National exposure and great experience. They play a fun variety of old and new Rock & Roll covers intended to please a wide variety of audiences. More than anything they ROCK!

The Kings

The Kings emerged from the depths of Ballard, Seattle in 2013 with hard hitting force, blending traditional brass ska with raw punk, soul and rock 'n' roll. "Watching this band perform is like being in the front car of a roller coaster. They're non-stop fun and you don't want to blink lest you miss some crazy stunt pulled by any one of the members. Anyone who's a fan of ska and/or just a fan of fun bands to watch, check out the Kings." - East Portland Blog
